A Final Stop on Ulysses' Road of Trials

Ulysses' road of trials is coming to an end as he gets closer to returning home. But what if he had to make one last stop on his journey? Where would he go? What obstacle would he face? Using what you know about The Adventure of Ulysses and the character traits of Ulysses, create your own obstacle for the hero to overcome.

Step 1: Describe the obstacle.

In the space below, describe a new obstacle Ulysses may encounter.

Questions to Consider:
Where would the obstacle take place?
What does this place look like?
Who (or what) would be involved?
Why do they want to keep Ulysses from getting home?
What problem/conflict does Ulysses face?

Step 2: Describe Ulysses' Reaction

In the space below, describe how Ulysses' would react to his new obstacle. Then explain why you think he would react this way. Consider Ulysses past experiences and his character traits when writing your response.

Questions to Consider:
How does Ulysses react to the obstacle?
What does he think?
What does he do?
Does he survive? How? Why not?
How do you know he would react this way? (What evidence do you have to support your response?)

Step 3: Draw a scene from Ulysses' obstacle below.
